McKenna Long & Aldridge LLP to Exhibit at AAPA's Annual Conference in Anchorage, Alaska

As global leaders in the practice of environmental law, McKenna Long & Aldridge LLP is looking forward to participating in the American Association of Port Authorities Annual Conference from September 21-25, 2008 in Anchorage Alaska.

Just this year, the U.S. Senate and the California Air Resources Board both implemented requirements for vessels to dramatically reduce emissions. Other states and government entities are expanding their focus on the environmental impacts of increased freight and transportation activity. Issues related to climate change and energy will continue to create challenges and opportunities for the ports and shipping industries.

Our firm provides legal counseling, advice and litigation services to these industries. We have significant experience in all areas of federal, state, and local environmental laws and regulations, as well as application of international agreements and treaties.

Our capabilities include:

- providing regulatory compliance advice;
- defending private and public enforcement actions;
- permitting;
- recordkeeping and reporting; and
- advising on changes to laws impacting coastal zone development and resources, and shipping and commerce.

We invite you to visit us at Booth #26 to learn more about our firm and how we can help you navigate these issues. To learn more about our capabilities and experience, please email one of the attorneys or specialists identified above to schedule a meeting at the show or visit our website at www.mckennalong.com/ports.html. More information about the conference can be found at www.aapa2008.com.
